In this connection it might further be stated that in 1891 the wool clip amounted to 5,498,141 lb., valued at $1,066,640. The wool clip of 1892 was valued at $1,027,154. The cheese produced in Ontario in 1883 amounted to 53,513,032 lb., worth $5,589,339, while that of 1891 amounted to 81,929,042 lb., worth $7,656,484. THE ONTARIO AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE AND EXPERIMENTAL FARM, GUELPH, ONTARIO.

In 1850 an Act of Parliament was passed to incorporate th Board of Agriculture in Upper Canada, which had been organized in 1846. Beginning with 1830, when the first legislation was enacted, down to 1850, the formation of agricultural societies had been encouraged and controlled by various Acts. The Act of 1850 was an important step toward the development of an Agricultural department under Governmental control. Of this Board the Professor of Agriculture in the University of Toronto (not yet appointed) was to be a member ex-officio. In January, 1852, Mr. Geo. Buckland, secretary of the above Board, was appointed Professor of Agriculture in the University of Toronto, and a beginning was thus made in the work of advanced agricultural instruction and investigation. The plan of teaching agriculture in connection with the Provincial University did not develop successfully, for in 1870 Mr. W. F. Clarke was appointed to visit the Michigan and Massachusetts agricultural colleges and report to the Commissioner of Agriculture and Arts upon the advisability of establishing an agricultural college and experimental farm for the Province of Ontario. After two or three years' investigation and delay, Moreton Lodge Farm of 550 acres, near Guelph, was bought from Mr. F. W. Stone. In May, 1874, the work of agricultural instruction was begun with 28 students, and the Ontario School of Agriculture entered upon its first year. After some temporary engagements the direction of the College was entrusted, in August, 1874, to Mr. Wm. Johnston. In addition Prof. Buckland, of the University gave lectures on the theory and practice of agriculture ; Prof. E. A. A. Grange, now of Michigan Agricultural College, gave lectures in anatomy, and Prof. Geo. Baptie on chemistry and physiology. Such was the beginning, about twenty years ago, of what has since become the Ontario Agricultural College and Experimental Farm.

In 1879 Principal Johnston was succeeded by Mr. James Mills, under whose careful supervision and intelligent direction the College has been brought to a high state of efficiency. Dr. Mills is now responsible for the management and supervision of all departments of the College and Farm,. In this connection it may be observed that the College teaches nothing but agriculture and the subjects having a direct bearing upon agriculture.

The College and Farm overlook Guelph, a progressive city of 11,000 inhabitants on the main line of the Grand Trunk Railway and on a branch line of the Canada Pacific Railway, in the County of Wellington. It is 50 miles west of Toronto. The County of Wellington is rolling and well watered, and for nearly half a century has been noted as one of the principal live stock sections of Canada and, in fact, of North America. Many important stock farms are thus accessible to the students in addition to the fine herds of the College and Farm.

The Farm consists of 550 acres, divided as follows: 44 acres of woods; 63 acres of garden, lawn, orchard, arboretum and fruit-tree plantations; 100 acres in experimental plots; 10 acres in roads, and 333 acres in the farm proper.

The College buildings are four in number, in addition to the residences on the grounds. The main College building contains dormitories for from 110 to 120 students, dining-room, kitchen and laundry; also the reading-room, library rooms, museum, Y. M. C. A. hall, hospital, two lecture rooms and the offices of the president and bursar. One of the lecture rooms is fitted up for instruction regarding live stock, so that animals can be brought in before the class. The next building is the chemical laboratory fitted up for practical teaching and for the analytical work in connection with the experiments of the dairy and farm. The horticultural building has just been finished, to which extensive greenhouses are attached. It also contains a student's working room for instruction in potting, grafting, etc., and well-equipped lecture-room and laboratory for the professor of botany. In addition is the new convocation hall, which is also fitted up as a gymnasium.

The Farm buildings are on a large scale and are very complete and well arranged. They enclose on four sides a paved court or yard. The main building is for storing hay and grain and for the milking and fattening cattle of the farm proper. The other three buildings are fitted up for sheep, horses and bulls. Two large piggeries stand close by. For experimenting and for instruction the farm keeps representatives of three breeds of swine, seven of sheep, and ten of cattle. A poultry building will be erected probably during the present year. In addition are to be found other buildings for the experimental work, for the mechanical department and for implements.

The dairy buildings form another group by themselves. There is a complete dairy barn with a circular silo attached, also a first-class piggery. The dairy building proper is constructed both for cheese and for butter-making. It is well equipped with all the modern apparatus necessary for all the operations of dairying. In addition to instructing the students of the regular courses, the dairy department sends throughout the province travelling dairies to give instruction to the people in butter-making, and during the present year the dairy department gave a special dairy course for men and women. So great has been the demand for this work that enlargement of the building is necessitated during the present summer.

During the month of January the members of the College staff take charge of the Farmers' Institutes. In January, 1893, assisted by members of the Advisory Board, ex-students of the College and a few leading farmers and fruit-growers, the College staff visited 119 different places in Ontario.

The course embraces instruction in practical agriculture, dairying, gardening, carpentry, etc., and lectures in English, chemistry, botany, horticulture, geology, entomology, mathematics, veterinary science, arboriculture, live stock, dairying, agriculture, etc. The instruction in the College is made as practical as possible. At the end of two years a diploma of the College is granted; at the end of three years, upon examination by the University of Toronto, the degree of B.S.A. (Bachelor of the Science of Agriculture) is conferred.

The fees vary from $20 a year for Ontario farmers' sons, to $100 a year for non-residents. The expenses are not excessive, and, as a moderate allowance is made for farm work actually done by all students, many are enabled to complete their course at but a moderate cash outlay.

During the present session 110 students have been admitted to the regular course, and 10 refused because of lack of accommodation. To the special dairy course 60 were admitted and over 80 refused because of lack of accommodation.

The College and Farm are under the control and direction of the Minister of Agriculture for the Province of Ontario, who, being a practical farmer of extensive and successful experience, takes a close personal interest in all the many lines of work.
